

ARTICLES

Cooney, M. H., & Buchanan, M. (2001). Documentation: Making assessment visible. Young Exceptional Children, 4(3), 10–16.

This article provides different ways to use video in documentation.

Hill, T. W. (1993). Assessment in context: Teachers and children at work. Young Children, 48(5), 20–28.

This article provides suggestions for using video and tape recordings to observe children's progress.

Lynch, E. M. (2001). Children in context: Portfolio assessment in the inclusive early childhood classroom. Young Exceptional Children, 5(1), 2–10.

This article provides examples of using videotape within portfolios to assess children's progress.

Skiffington, S., Washburn, S., & Elliott, K. (2011). Instructional coaching: Helping preschool teachers reach their full potential. Young Children, 66(3), 12–19.

This article describes how teachers can use video to reflect on instructional practices, and how to use observations to inform teaching and improve student learning.

BOOKS AND CHAPTERS

Dichtelmiller, M. L. (2011). The power of assessment: Transforming teaching and learning. Washington, DC: Teaching Strategies, Inc.

This book includes chapters that discuss how to plan for and manage observation data in order to improve learning in the classroom. Provides examples of using technology to observe in the classroom.

Connor, C. (1999). Assessment in action in the primary school. Philadelphia, PA: Falmer Press.

This book outlines the importance of using video to motivate students and improve future performance.

WEB RESOURCES

Results Matter Video Library – Early Care and Education

<http://www.cde.state.co.us/resultsmatter/RMVideoSeries.htm>

This Colorado Department of Education website resource provides a number of downloadable videos that show video being used in early childhood classrooms for assessment purposes.

Desired Results Access Project Video Library

<http://www.draccess.org/videolibrary/>

This California Department of Education website resource highlights the importance of video in documentation and assessment, and provides several downloadable examples from the 2012 Desired Results Access Project video library.